

Alpha & Omega

Issue #28, 12/14/92

Alpha & Omega is the official zine of the Miller Number Custodian. Published by: Lee A. Kendter, Jr., 376A Willowbrook Drive, Jeffersonville, PA 19403 (215) 539-3479.

Subs are $.75 (USA), $1.00 (Canada), $1.50 (overseas) per issue. Back issues are available. If interested, please let me know which issues, and I can give you a price to get the copies.

I am looking for large blocks of old zines that dealt with variants. If you have a large block to contribute I would appreciate it. I will pay postage up to $2.90 without question. If the blocks requires more and you want postage costs, please write me with the list of zines.

I would like to get original copies of the Lord of Hosts. If anybody can supply them I would be very grateful. I have copies of copies right now and the quality is a bit weak with some issues.

If anyone wishes to submit articles on variants, I will include them in future issues of A&O.

Sorry about not getting an issue out sooner. I have been working a very lot of overtime and have been unable to find time to get an issue out. Until recently there was a lack of games to print. If articles come in, that will insure an A&O at least once a quarter.

The McInTinker Variant

Bruce McIntyre

1) The McInTinker variant, a creation of Don Tinker and Bruce McIntyre, is a variant designed for the one person in each face to face Diplomacy crowd who can get whatever he wants (for example, Don Tinker), and that other person in the same crowd, who will quite happily do it (for example, Bruce McIntyre). Rules are precisely the same as Regular Diplomacy except where changed below.

2) All six provinces of England are designated as supply centers.

3) England starts play with one unit in each of its six home supply centers.

4) All six of these units are armies.

Dirigible Diplomacy

by Lew Pulsipher

This variant is partially based on H.G. Wells' novel, "The War in the Air". Written in 1908, Wells depicted the development of air forces which were both very destructive and cheap and ease of construction. The main force were huge rigid-framework hydrogen-filled airships (known in 1914 as dirigibles or Zeppelins). Wells however did not foresee the real expense and maintenance required. Also, dirigibles were very vulnerable to special bullets fired by areoplanes (such bullets, did not exist when Wells wrote his novel). For purposes of this variant however, we assume Wells to be partially right; dirigibles are stronger than they were in World War I.

1. An additional type of unit, the dirigible air fleet (D). Several huge airships and heavier-than-air machines carried by them comprise a D, which is relatively cheap to build but also fragile.
2. Each supply center yields five supply points (SP) each game year. Each year it costs the following to supply a unit: Army or Fleet - 4 SP, Dirigible - 3 SP. SP may not be accumulated or transferred to another player, so any extra is lost.
3. The begins with a 1900 building session. Using their SP from home supply centers (15 except Russia, 20) each player builds units of this choice in his home centers. A dirigible may be built in a center which also contains a normal army or fleet. Russia, however may not build fleet SP north coast in 1900.
4. D orders are treated as an additional set of conflicts taking place above armies and fleets. As well as acting for, and against one another D's may support an attack on, or defence in the space directly "below" (the one the D occupies), but may not themselves attack. Therefore a D cannot cut support by an army or fleet. Armies and Fleets have no effect on D's. When a D supports an army or fleet it may not do anything else and an attack on it by another D will cut the support.
5. Only one D may occupy a space, but an army or fleet, even one belonging to another player, may also occupy the space.
6. If a D is dislodged, it is automatically disbanded.
7. A D cannot be built in a center where a D of another player is present even though the opponents D cannot capture the center. However, if the country is entitled to a build, an army or fleet may be built if the center is not devastated.
8. A D may not capture a supply center, but if alone in the center it may "devastate" it. A unit may not be built in a devastated center and it is not counted in supply center totals, for the next adjustments only. Afterwards it reverts to normal. A player may not devastate a center he owns.
9. A D may not transport an army.
10. A player wins when he owns nineteen undevastated supply centers.
